Last Meeting's Proceedings – 16 October 2019

Speaker: Alan Lee

Alan's official title is Senior Manager, Strategic Partnership, Hong Kong Committee for UNICEF.

Alan explored the general sense of partnership and then utilised UNICEF as a case study throughout his presentation. Seventy percent of business partnerships ultimately fail. Partnerships require nurturing: relationship, support, friendship, cooperation, communication. The difficulty in partnerships is that partnerships consist of different people from different backgrounds and diverse values.

Speaking for himself, Alan is well travelled and comes with a mixture of cultures: Australian, Singaporean and Hong Kong. Alan was a childhood actor here in Hong Kong, both his parents are Hong Kong actors. And Alan walks through how one expression said in different location (cultures) (Australia, Singapore, Hong Kong) may be interpreted entirely differently.

UNICEF was established in 1946 and is transforming the lives of children in 190+ countries today, from 'survive from arrival' to 'thrive in adult'.

Alan further highlights the following projects:

1. The Global Polio Eradication programme, this programme was initiated in 1998 and so far has helped an estimated 18 Million people who would otherwise be not walking because of Polio.
2. Nutrix, fished based crackers which have balanced nutrition. Nutrix is called a "life-saving snack". It is also inexpensive to make locally.
3. Lixil toilets which are inexpensive to manufacture and easy to install are deployed in Africa and India, saving many lives from poor hygiene and personal danger.
4. Cause Related Marketing with Pampers to gift one vaccine per pack of diapers purchased,
5. Using drones to deliver vaccines and carry blood samples for babies in remote villages.

Partnership consists of cohesion and congruence in Vision, Mission and Values. Scope can be from leverage and exchange, to combine and integration, to transformation through partnership. At the end of the day, maximizing impact is the ultimate goal.

Alan ended his presentation by singing us a song, "You Raised Me Up".
